FLORENCE, S.C. — Community volunteers showed up Monday morning, Earth Day, ready to kick litter to the curb. About 20 volunteers made of up local business owners, employees, and neighbors met at Naturally Outdoors on West Palmetto Street where they were armed with gloves, vests, bags, grabber tools and a game plan.

The group removed more than 150 pounds of trash from a section of West Palmetto Street, under its bridge, and out of Jeffries Creek. The cleanup day was organized by The City of Florence Resilience & Sustainability Advisory Committee in partnership with Keep Florence Beautiful.

Mindy Taylor, Duke Energy community relations manager and chair of the Florence Resilience and Sustainability Advisory Committee, a committee that advises city council on programs and initiatives, was there supported by fellow Duke Energy employees who came prepared with waders to keep them dry while they debris from the waters of Jeffries Creek.

city and work alongside our citizens to ensure they can be enjoyed for generations to come,” said Taylor.

Many enjoy the green space that sits beside Naturally Outdoors on West Palmetto Street and serves as an entrance to the Florence Rail Trail and Jeffries Creek. Hunter Morgan, owner of Naturally Outdoors, said trash is an ongoing chore.

“It’s so much fun to see families hang out here. Unfortunately there’s trash from just how trash gets out — people driving by, being in a hurry and not thinking about it. We constantly pick up the trash from around here but it just gets flooded from everywhere,” said Morgan, who also serves on the city resilience and sustainability committee.

Laura McFadden was there to help and knew about the clean up from the Florence Outside group. “I just wanted to help out with Earth Day. I paddle a lot with the Florence Outside group which is a great group, and just wanted to help,” said McFadden.

McFadden said she had removed everything from socks, drive-thru boxes, Styrofoam, a candle to a razor on the side of the road.

Florence Outside is a community organization that aims to improve quality of life in Florence by increasing opportunities for outdoor active living. The group has planned a Jeffries Creek Cleanup Paddle for May 17.
